

Dear

So far we have distributed 564,000 textbooks in Tanzania and changed the stories of almost 300,000 people in East Africa and the UK.

Since opening our office in Dar es Salaam in July 2009, we have developed our communications and support with schools and have learnt more about how we can improve our work in East Africa. Immediately apparent is the potential that READ has to make a significant impact on the experience of schooling and upon confidence and aspirations of young people. When we give a book it is not the end of the line, but the beginning of something else...

READ: A good story...

2010 will be the sixth time that volunteers have distributed books in Tanzania and the first time to Uganda. By September, we will have delivered 900,000 disused but good-quality and relevant textbooks to East Africa, reaching one quarter of Tanzanian secondary schools. UK volunteers will have worked with Tanzanian students and teachers to renovate over 20 school libraries.

Your help to carry us forward...

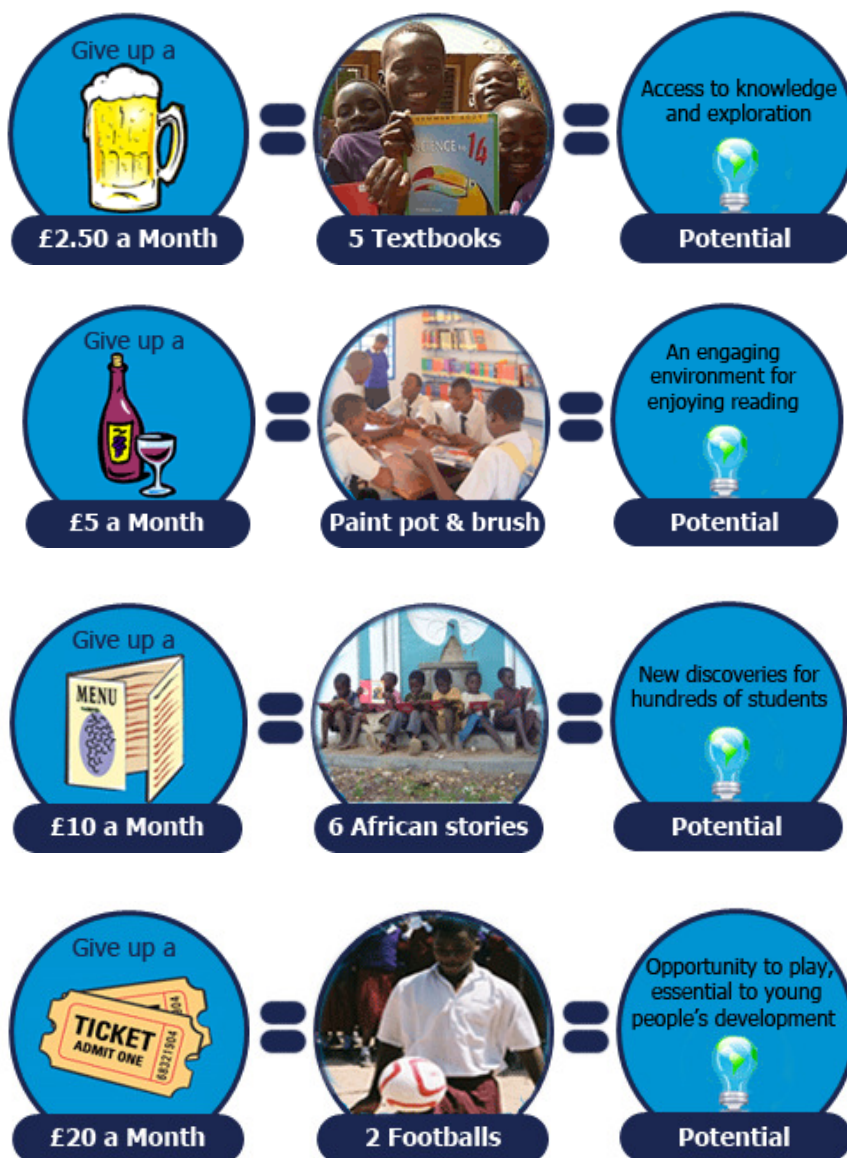

READ's expansions and developments are exciting and only the beginnings of what could be possible. But in the current financial climate, many sources of fundraising have become less certain, making it even harder to plan for the future and make commitments to the schools and students with which we work.

By committing to a regular monthly donation as small as £2.50 (the equivalent of giving up less than a pint of beer a month!) you can help us to reach our potential in changing the stories of thousands more people in the UK and East Africa. And then they can reach their potential too...

You can do this by filling in the form at the end of this letter or by going online to <http://www.readinternational.org.uk/pages/donate/>. So...
